Friday, May 19. 1704.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated May 16.

Basil, April 8.

Yesterday a Party of French Horse made an Excursion up to Willen, a Village belonging to the House of Austria, which alarm'd the Garrison of Rhinfeld, as also the Troops posted at the Passage of Rothenhaus, or the Red-House, who thought the whole French Army was coming upon them; and thereupon a Courier was sent to the Emperor's Minister at Baden, to give him Advice of it. The Imperial Minister immediately communicated this Advice to the Laudable Cantons, who thank'd him for it, and assur'd him they were in a Readiness to keep the French from passing over their Frontiers.

From the Rotterdam Gazette, dated May 15.

Schafbusen, May 3. They write from Turin, that all the Troops of the Duke of Savoy are in Motion to form a Camp near the Sesia, and that all his Royal Highnesses fortified Places are so well provided, that the Enemy, tho' Superior in Number, will find it difficult to take any of them. The Baron de St. Remy, had all the Success in his Expedition into Savoy that could be wish'd. He found in the Magazines, which the Enemies had stor'd, Provisions sufficient for maintaining his Detachment. He reliev'd Montmeilan, and in his March took 500 Prisoners, among them a great many Officers. The French have blown up the Castles of Cortandon, Settine, and Mombaron, in the County of Asti. Since the Ministers of the Emperor and of Savoy return'd from Baden to Berne, a Report is spread that France is ready to consent to a Neutrality for Savoy, provided all Italy, (Piemont excepted,) be included in it. That is to say they as good as refuse to agree to any Neutrality at all, desiring rather to have the Revenues of the Dutchy of Savoy, which amount to 4 or 500000 Crowns yearly, and to preserve other Advantages which they gain by having that Dutchy in their Hands.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated May 13.

Rig., April 18. A Body of the Muscovites is come into this Province, have block'd up Nerva, and taken a Convoy of Provisions that was going thither by Land from Revel: 'Tis talk'd another Convoy will be sent thither from Revel by Sea, with a Reinforcement of 2000 Men; but 'tis very much apprehended it will not be easie for this Convoy neither to get up to the Town of Nerva; because the Muscovites have rais'd Batteries on each side of the Harbour, and planted Cannon on them, to defend the Entrance. They have likewise pillag'd and afterwards burnt a Village within 3 Leagues of Nerva, not sparing so much as the Church; and 'tis reported the Czar is speedily expected at Jama with a formidable Army, and that he is resolv'd to besiege Nerva. And 'tis fear'd he will soon make himself Master of it, because the Garrison are very much weakend by Sicknes, and are not furnish'd with sufficient Stores of Provisions.

The Captain of the Mermaid Gally (which as was said in yesterday's Courant is arriv'd from Smirna at Plymouth) writes, that the Venetian Gally, a Turkey Ship which came from Smirna with him, was chased the 17th of April off Cape de Gatt by a French Ship of about 60 Guns; that he saw the Venetian Gally stand upon a Wind, hoist his Colours, and fire his Stern Guns; and that afterwards he heard several Broad-sides, which makes it fear'd she was taken by the Enemy.
